LB 362 WOULD RESTRICT ACTIVITY FEES

Nebraska State Senator James A. Dickinson introduced a bill before the Unicameral last Wednesday that would prohibit the assessment of student fees at state-supported colleges and universities.

LB 362 would also require advance notice of uses to which such fees are to be put.

Dickinson says the bill is similar to one introduced at the end of the last session, but was "lost in the shuffle."

The District 31 representative gave his rationale for the bill. "In this day and age when students are insisting on freedom of choice regarding university matters, we should give it to them." This is why he feels the fees should not be mandatory.

Although a recent court decision called the fees assessment "not constitutionally prohibited," Dickinson insists that he agrees. "It's not a matter on constitutionality but . . . a matter of philosophy," the legislator claims.

Dickinson sees the fees as "socialistic" in nature. He uses health services as an example. "If students want health service," he argues, "they can get insurance; that's what it's for."

Another major problem Dickinson finds is that "the students don't even know they're paying the fees." He is certain that a good number of students are assessed their tuition and fees and are not even aware that the fees are over and above tuition. "At least, I think this is the way it is at Lincoln," he stated.

"Besides," he says, "I don't believe students are that interested in extra-curricular activities to pay for them through fees."

Even though the bill provides for a prohibition of mandatory fees, it does not outline to what extent there will be fees, since it does call for advance notice of the fees' uses.

When asked if he was familiar with how the monies were allocated in the Nebraska state schools, Dickinson said he didn't know, but someone was getting the information for him.

The senator wasn't aware of where the bill stood at the end of last week. "I'm not even sure if the bill has been sent to committee," he conceded.

Chancellor Roskens looks over the agenda during last Saturday's Regents' meeting. Stories . . . page 2 and 6.

UNO Fine Arts School Approved by Regents

In September, 1970 the Regents' Commission on the Urban University of the 70's published the following recommendation:

"... that a Community-University Council on the Creative and Performing Arts be established to furnish leadership in enlarging and strengthening existing programs and services in the performing arts fields."

Since then, the performing arts at UNO have gained tremendous momentum. Their growth was climaxed Saturday when the University of Nebraska Board of Regents gave formal approval to the UNO School of Fine Arts.

The establishment of the school has received informal approval at the January Regents' meeting.

Although the initial recommendation for the advancement of the performing arts came from the 1970 report, it was further recommended by Dr. William Gaines, UNO dean of academic affairs; Dr. John Blackwell, UNO dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; and the College of Arts and Sciences faculty.

It is anticipated that the new administrative structure will help make possible cooperative and innovative ventures among the arts and facilitate development of new programs.

Music joins art

The school will now administratively tie art and music (previously separate within the College of Arts and Sciences). The dramatic arts, formerly a part of the speech department, and the dance program, now separated from the women's physical education department, will also be absorbed by the new school.

The UNO-Community Writer's Workshop and the UNO Fine arts press will also come under the school's umbrella. These two operations were formerly administered by the department of English and department of journalism respectively.

Moore approved

The Regents also gave approval for the appointment of Dr. Robert Moore, assistant professor of speech, as director of the new school and associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Robert Welk, assistant professor of speech, was appointed acting chairman of the Department of Dramatic Art.

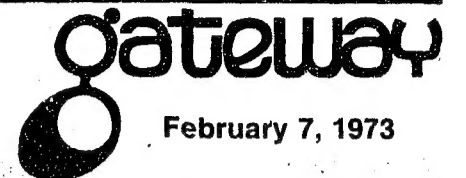

Approval was also given to Paul Engle as distinguished adjunct professor of creative writing within the School of Fine Arts. In this position, Engle will work with the UNO-Community Writer's Workshop and the School of Fine Arts as a lecturer and consultant.

Summer sessions

Other Regents' business included approval of a UNO summer session budget of $628,801, about the same as it was in 1972. Six thousand students are expected to enroll in the two sessions beginning June 1 and July 16.

The board also adopted guidelines that permit union representatives to sign up NU employees as members in nonworking areas during nonworking hours including coffee breaks.

Union meetings will be permitted on campus provided they do not interfere with work or classroom schedules.

Moore to Head New Fine Arts School

The creation of a School of Fine Arts within the present College of Arts and Sciences has been approved by UNO's Board of Regents. Dr. Robert Moore has been named as director of the Fine Arts School.

Moore, formerly assistant professor of speech, also will have the title of associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Moore was chairman of a faculty committee which worked for 1½ years towards creation of the Fine Arts School. He will act as interim director until June 30, at which time the School will receive a permanent dean.

Moore is excited and quite encouraged about the Fine Arts School, and said it holds great promise for Omaha, the community, and the University. He said it will aid in creating a better identity for the arts.

His role as director, will consist of developing and laying the groundwork within the University and community for the new Dean. Moore will set up the school's structure, handle faculty and budget matters, represent administrators, and promote an overall feel of harmony and co-operation within the School.

Moore would like to improve and develop many areas of the Arts including music, dramatic arts, art, and the UNO-Community Writer's Workshop. He hopes to develop a B.F.A. program and says a "M.F.A. program might be possible."

He hopes the school can offer a wider variety of courses, more specialized and more in-depth. He wants to develop better graduate programs and present more guest speakers and artists.

The accomplishment of these goals will rely heavily on the outcome of the Unicameral's budget allocations for the University.

It is not known whether Moore will be considered for permanent deanship. The newly-appointed search committee for the Dean of the School of Fine Arts, will soon begin interviewing candidates for the position.

Moore came to the University of Nebraska at Omaha in 1969, as an assistant professor of speech.

4-Hour Meeting Long For Student Senate

The Student Senate elected four new senators in a four-and-a-half hour session Thursday night.

The new members will fill vacancies created as other senators resigned their seats. They are Greg Blodick, sophomore seat; Deborah Magee, Education; Heshimu Iverii and Marsha Hiner, Arts and Sciences.

The second Arts and Science representative was named after Bill Lane resigned his seat in that college due to "political back-stabbing." Pointing out that he was ineligible to hold office anyway, he recommended the senate look into the qualifications of all members; which the senate duly passed.

In other action, the senate approved an executive resolution for the creation of a special half-price parking sticker for night students. They also recommended the elimination of the "drop and add fee" and directed that the Registrar's Office notify by certified mail those students who are to be de-registered because they have not made a tuition payment.

Guest speaker, Mrs. Mary Hall of the Home Economics Department, discussed the proposed merger of the UNO department with the College of Home Economics in Lincoln. Mrs. Hall said the UNO department favored the merger as it will enable them to offer accredited degrees.

Student Body President, Rusty Schwartz, asked that the Veterans Affairs office, presently housed in the Student Government Office, be moved to the first floor of the Student Center. He said the move will be only temporary, to insure the occupation of that space by a student enterprise. The resolution passed.

Another student office, the Academic Resources Center, was also established in the Student Center. It will serve as a resource center for teacher-course evaluation, lecture notes, the book-exchange, tutorial programs and the Free University program. $750.00 was allocated as salary for a director of the center.

In addition, $900.00 was approved for the hiring of a supervisor for the UNO Fieldhouse. The allocation will open the facility for free time use Monday through Friday, 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., and from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Saturday during the spring and summer sessions.

A lengthy debate was waged on a proposal to hold committee meetings on the off-

Home Ec Merger Imminent

Another UNO-UNL merger is imminent as the UNO department of Home Economics moves towards becoming part of the College of Home Economics at UNL.

Dean Paul Kennedy of the UNO College of Education, of which Home Economics is now a part, and Mrs. Mary Hall, department chairman, have submitted final recommendations for such a merger.

What the move means for UNO is the opportunity to be part of an accredited, degreed program in Home Economics, whereas the present UNO program would be in jeopardy if accreditation were sought.

A "metropolitan direction" is sought for the portion of the program which would remain at UNO. UNO would offer four specialized majors in the areas of Education and Family Resources, Food and Nutrition, Human Development and the Family, and Textiles, Clothing and Design.

Mrs. Mary Hall

It is felt that this program would provide new thrust on Home Economics pertinent to a metropolitan university, according to the report. The Lincoln campus has 8 home economics major programs.

Students specializing in fields other than the designated four, would be able to take prerequisite courses here, but eventually complete their programs at UNL. All students presently enrolled would be allowed to graduate under the program they entered.

Mrs. Hall feels the benefits accrued from the merger would overshadow any inconveniences. By joining with the "highly esteemed" college in Lincoln, the UNO department would be upgraded to meet Lincoln standards, said Mrs. Hall. Those things that have limited the UNO program — lack of space and faculty — would be alleviated.

Along with the exchange of faculty between the campuses, UNO teachers would become members of the faculty of the College of Home Economics. All courses at UNO would also be subject to the curriculum committee of the College of Home Economics.

The Right to Know

SPO activities are often pure enjoyable entertainment. They've brought us several entertainers who have been on the brink of success or on the eve of a new upsurge. Witness Zager and Evens, Seals and Croft, Roberta Flack, David Steinberg, George Carlin, Loggins and Messina, John Denver, and Flash Cadillac.

All of these performers experienced greater successes and popularity after they were booked at UNO. Let there be no implied connections drawn between UNO and success, but rather an offer of congratulations to the foresight, or just plain luck, of SPO.

SPO activities are sometimes educational, too. This week's Press Symposium offers another case where SPO planning has been right on top of things.

The Symposium is about the First Amendment and a concept called freedom. In particular it focuses on the peoples' right to know in the world's free marketplace of information, where thoughts and ideas flow unobstructed from one person to another.

It's about "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press . . ." These freedoms are threatened every day.

The lecturers and panel members in the three-day symposium come from national and local media outlets. In today's program, conservative spokesman William Rusher, publisher of the National Review, and abridged journalist Peter Bridge, who was recently held in jail for protecting his sources of information, will be joined by prominent local journalists to explore "Press Freedom in 1973."

Thursday's calendar features Mr. Bridge on "Protection of Newsmen's Sources." We should seriously evaluate the recent impact of news personnel being imprisoned for not divulging the sources they hold in confidence. The threat that these actions produce may be an ultimate Gatekeeper who locks up the flow of information behind bars.

Another area of discussion Thursday is "Government and Broadcasting." The Nixon Administration has imposed what some observers have feared to be serious repressive tendencies through infringements on the programming and news content of our electronic media. With 1984 just around the decade, the image of Big Brother is tuning in with sharper clarity.

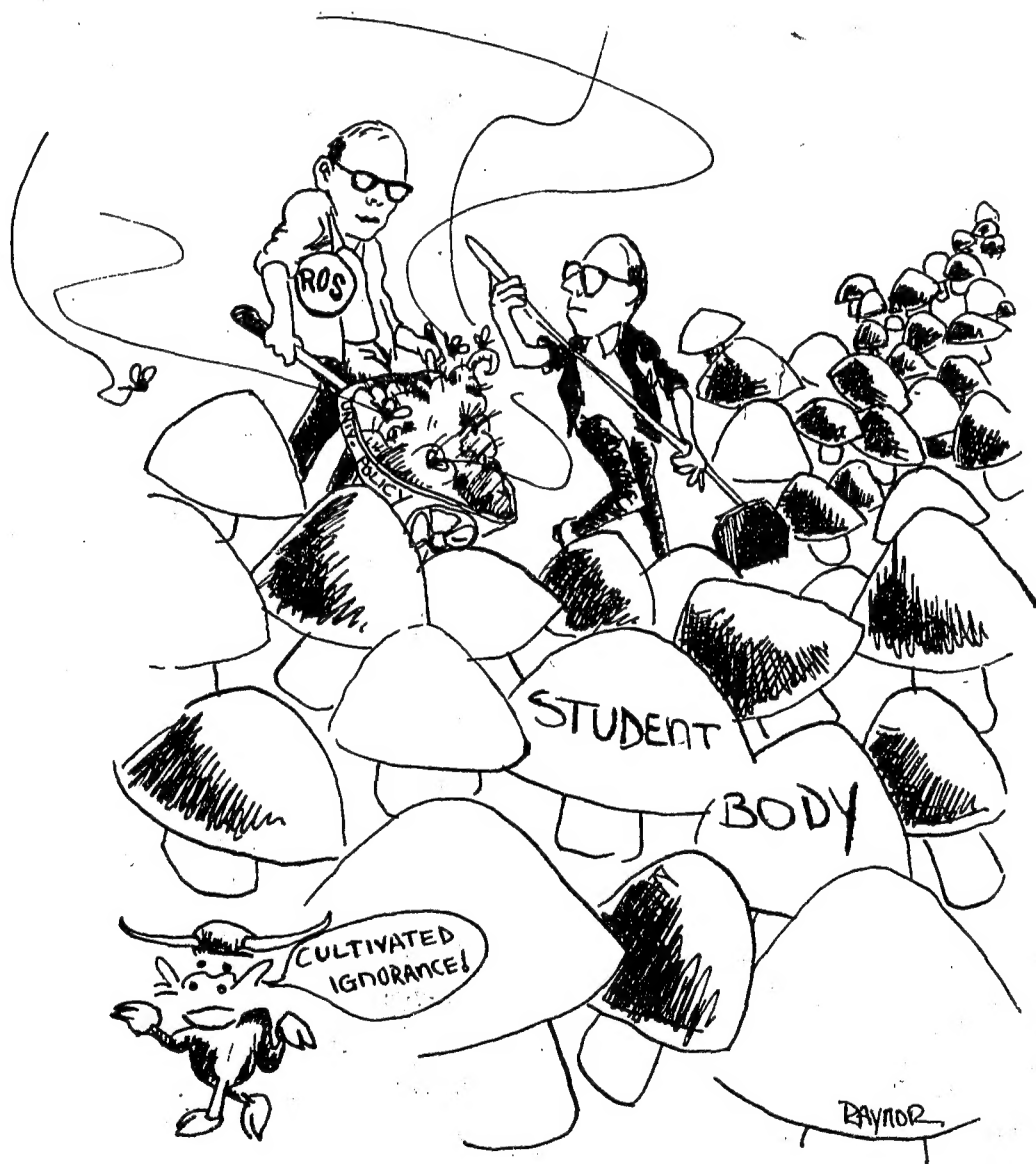

Friday's schedule headlines veteran broadcast journalist Sander Vanocor. Mr. Vanocor will expand the previous day's discussion by examining the industry side of "Responsibility in Broadcast News." News Directors of local stations will be in the panel.

One area is not specifically outlined between Thursday's Government control over broadcasting and Friday's Industry responsibilities and rights. That area may be most important of all: the rights of the people to the public airways and information.

How much freedom do each of us have or exercise in directly controlling our own channels of information? Hopefully the discussions will branch out to include a measurable portion of attention to this fundamental question.

Overall, the Press Symposium focuses on an extremely hot contemporary issue. We must remain acutely conscious of any barriers obstructing our right to know. Without public awareness, freedoms have a way of fading.

SPO should once again be commended for presenting this outstanding forum.

Mr. Greg Knudsen,

The new format and content of the Gateway under your leadership is interesting and refreshing.

There is one small ego generated item I would appreciate your calling to the attention of your rewrite people: There are frequent references to the LIBRARY Conference Center. This is a misnomer. It is the EPPLEY Conference Center.

I understand why, and how easy it is to identify it with/as library, but we in CCS appreciate its proper identification with the college.

Furious Purple

The Gateway,

It has come to my attention through friends that furious purple has struck again. This is the first pseudonym which Mr. Willard used to describe his reaction to AIA three years ago and it appears that the hue hasn't diminished any.

I hope that this ire does not hide the obvious fact that such man-centered interpretations of man-originated documents as the constitution which would separate church and state, are in themselves as profoundly religious as any personal testimony is.

This would seem to make Mr. Willard's value judgments, whether cloaked in a constitutional framework, or a mere classroom approach which seeks to be open-minded and hence lends fuel to the neutrality myth in considering religion — inconsistent.

Great Teacher Award Missing at Mid-Year

Traditionally announced at mid-year commencement, the Great Teacher's Award was missing this year.

Instead, the $1,000 award to the outstanding UNO teacher of the year, will be a part of the Honors Convocation to be held this spring.

That's not the only change, however. The committee named last fall by the University Senate to conduct the selection process has been phased out by Chancellor Ronald Roskens, who has replaced it with another committee.

The second committee will review the entire Honors Convocation proceedings and a sub-committee of that committee will oversee the Great Teacher search.

Roskens has asked Barbara Brilhart, president of the faculty senate, and Rusty Schwartze, president of the student body, to select four faculty members and four students, respectively, to sit on the committee. In addition, the Chancellor will appoint staff members to take part. It has not yet been determined what proportion of those members will serve on the Great Teacher's Award sub-committee.

"so anticipating we would have the same responsibility, I got my committee started"

The reorganization came as a surprise to the chairman of the Improvement of Instruction Committee, Dr. Blaine Ward, who was preparing to conduct the Great Teacher search. "In the past the committee had this responsibility," said Ward, "and so anticipating we would have the same responsibility, I got my committee started."

Last week, Ward was named a member of the new committee set up for the Honors Convocation review. "I personally will be involved, whether my committee will be, I don't know," he added.

Vice-Chancellor Ronald Beer, who is serving as the committee coordinator, said the Great Teacher's Award was connected to the Honors Convocation as a matter of appropriateness. He doesn't feel the award had a place in a graduation ceremony, whereas an Honors Convocation is the place to honor faculty as well as students.

The past few years, however, the convocation has died due to a lack of administrative interest.

The restructuring of the University Senate to a Faculty Senate since the award was last made, has narrowed the basis of representation for that selection. The Chancellor would like to implement a university-wide committee to conduct the search, thus equalizing the number of faculty, staff, and students participating. The former committee included only two graduate students for its entire student representation.

"... the selection was too political; too much on popularity"

Ward commented, "There has possibly been the feeling in the past that the selection was too political; too much based on popularity." The established procedure for the Great Teacher selection, in part, invited this, he pointed out.

In the past, nominations were turned in to the committee with a statement of qualification, by any member of the faculty, staff, or student body. "There was a feeling the evaluation was based on the number of nominations, rather than the quality of written comments," said Ward.

The committee then distributed all nomination forms to their respective undergraduate colleges. Here what amounted to a "poll of the teachers" was taken, according to Ward, and no more than two final names were sent back to the committee.

The Improvement of Instruction Committee then narrowed these down to two or three finalists which were presented to the Chancellor for the final selection.

This year, Dr. Ward proposed that instead of nominations being sent to the colleges, the committee do all the necessary screening, with the Chancellor retaining the final decision. He will submit the same proposal to the new committee for consideration.

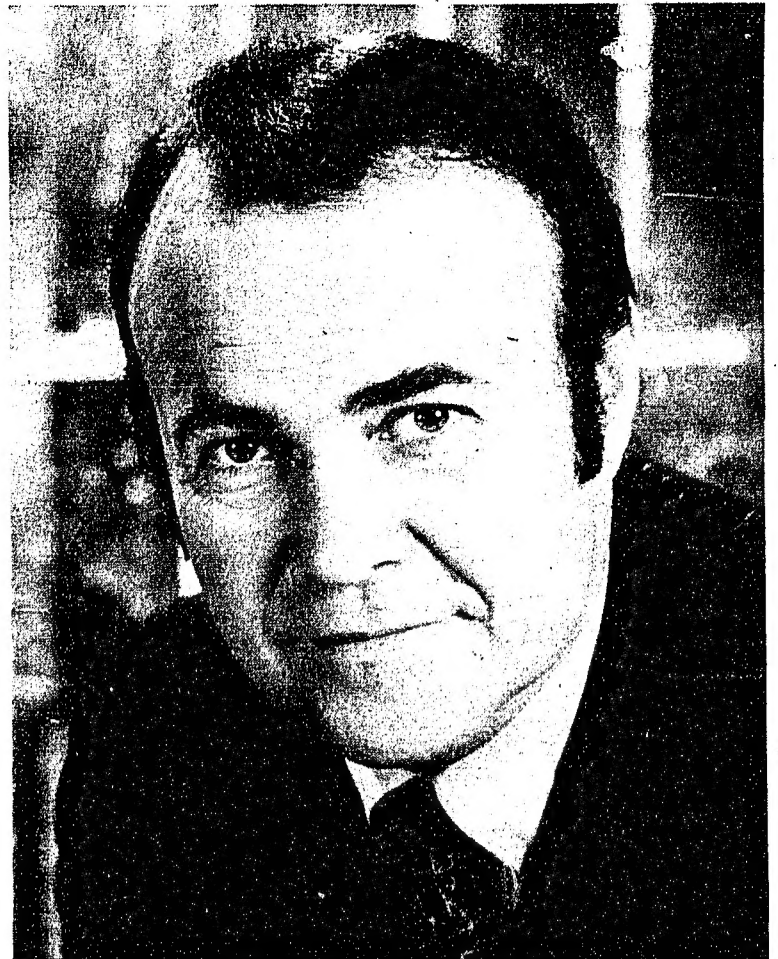

"... all the losers are mad at the judges"

Besides determining by what means student and faculty honors should be selected, the committee must decide what kinds of accomplishments should be recognized. Beer hopes the restructuring will revive the whole idea of honoring students and faculty.

"We want to make it personalized and recognize more achievements," he said. This would include awards for more than solely the highest grade point averages, where students are concerned.

In honoring the faculty, the committee may expand the number of awards given to teachers, or give the Great Teacher Award to more than one person. However, they must also deal with the monetary aspect. It is not yet determined from where the $1,000 for the Great Teacher's Award will come. Last year, a fund-raising event was held.

A particular problem the committee will face in setting up criteria for awards is in specifying what it is that makes a teacher great. This is one responsibility Dr. Ward's original committee will not regret losing. "It's a thankless job," said Ward, "all the losers are mad at the judges."

Lot 'X' ... full and sometimes overflowing

'X' Lot Runneth Over

Captain Mike Loftus of the Campus Security has received numerous complaints recently from students, faculty, and staff about an inconvenience that we all must bear — parking.

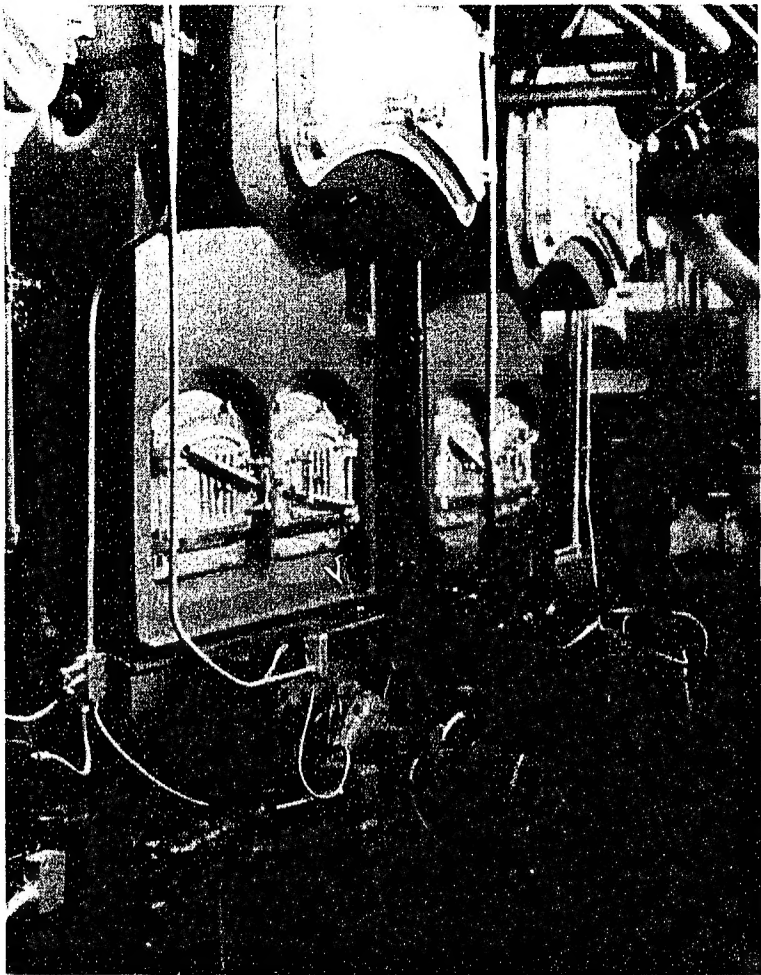

One particular source of irritation has been the re-occurrence of improperly parked vehicles blocking or obstructing traffic in 'X' Lot, the new lot on the site of the old Milder property.

"Tickets have apparently not resolved the situation," Loftus said. He stated that the unreasonably parked cars have been parked in "driving lanes, entrance and exit drives, and in other areas that conflict with the free flow of traffic."

Loftus hopes that an alternative to towing can be found. "Towing these vehicles is very expensive for all concerned, and I trust it will not be necessary," he said.

So, think of this: How would you like it if the next time you had to rush off to work you couldn't, because your car was blocked? Or, what if the next time you had to rush off to work you couldn't, because your car had been towed out of the way.

Home Ec Merger

The Dean of the College would remain in Lincoln, and an Assistant Dean would be established at UNO to whom budgetary responsibility would be delegated for the operation of the UNO program.

One question remains undetermined, however; that of the status of student credit hour production. The computation of credit hours determines, in part, the amount of money the department is allocated in the budget. As student Body President, Rusty Schwartze, pointed out, "Overall, in our merger programs with Lincoln, we have lost credit hours."

He said Dean William Gaines is taking steps to prevent this from happening by working out a new formula for how credit hours are granted. The formal report states that hours will be credited to the college of Home Economics.

The recommendation also calls for a full-time person to undertake a HERO (Home Economics in Related Occupations) program. This includes curriculum for a vocational teaching major and for Home Economics in Community Agencies. In addition, a need was expressed for a full-time faculty member for Interior Design and for Clothing and Textiles on the UNO campus.

The merger is moving more slowly than its controversial counterparts in the past. Mrs. Hall said, "We met with students, faculty members, and deans . . . and tried to avoid any surprise, misunderstanding, or awkward situations that would cause any students to suffer."

Student Senate

Thursday the senate does not meet, at which attendance would be mandatory. After passing 11 to 10, the resolution was thrown out on the grounds it was a by-law and required a two-thirds vote.

Doug Clark later introduced a similar resolution which would require committees to meet at least once every other week at a time set by the members. This also failed because many senators refused to comply with the mandatory attendance requirement.

Partial Review and Comments on the Impact of the Executive Budget Recommendations for the University of Nebraska Delivered by Durwood Varner to the NU Board of Regents February 3, 1973

In reviewing the impact on the University of Nebraska of the Executive Budget recommended to the Legislature, it seems appropriate to comment briefly on the process we have followed in submitting the budget request to the Governor's office, and through his office to the Legislature.

At the urging of Regents, members of the executive and legislative branches of state government, and following the specific recommendations of the management study of the administration of the University, we developed a five-year plan establishing specific priority actions to help improve the quality of the University.

This was thoughtfully and realistically developed over a period of almost a year, and the process involved literally hundreds of people both on the campuses and off the campuses. It was reviewed thoroughly by the members of this Board of Regents and with certain modifications has been approved by this Board.

With this five-year plan as the basic guide, the budget requests were developed and submitted to the Board of Regents. We believed that the initial recommendations were realistic and in keeping with the program described in the five-year plan. You, as the Board of Regents, exercised your constitutional and legal rights — indeed, your responsibilities — and directed that we reduce our request by $2 million. This we did.

First, I want to recognize the positive aspects of the recommendations:

1. I believe the salary increases recommended by the Governor are reasonable and should be generally acceptable to the University. The budget calls for a 3 1/2% general salary increase, plus an additional 1% for special merit, plus an additional $15 per month per employee as a contribution toward an insurance program. This represents an effective increase of between 5% and 6% for the professional staff, and the funding of the State Personnel Pay Plan will provide for increases of 7% to 9%. I believe these to be fair.

2. The recommendations provide funding for at least a partial equalization of the fringe benefits among the campuses. We have asked for this in earlier budget requests, and I believe this to be extremely important in making certain that all our employees are treated equally. We are pleased with this recommendation.

3. The budget recommendations for the Lincoln campus provide $380,000 in new money for strengthening agricultural programs, and this we applaud. This again is recognition of the important role of agriculture in this State.

4. The budget recognizes the need to continue to strengthen the ability of UNO to serve its community. The provision of $244,000 for program improvement is encouraging, although it falls short of our needs.

In general, it seems to me that the Executive Budget recommendation for continuation is reasonable and merits our support.

Let me turn to the areas of particular concern about the budget recommendations:

1. Some important academic program improvements which we had requested, had hoped for, and genuinely need on the campuses were not accommodated.

Only 20% of the funds which we had asked for for strengthening selected departments on the Lincoln campus were recommended; and on the Omaha campus almost 50% of the funds requested for program improvement were deleted.

2. We have serious reservations on two major items on the revenue side of the budget recommendations:

The Executive Budget submitted to the Legislature provides for an even larger tuition increase than had been recommended by the Regents. The Regents' recommendation called for eliminating the "free hours" (from 12 to 16 credit hours) but reducing the resident student tuition from the existing $18 per credit hour to $17 per credit hour, and the non-resident tuition from $48.25 to $46.

The Executive Budget recommendation similarly calls for eliminating the "free zone" but recommends a continuation of the $18 per credit hour for resident students and the $48.25 per credit hour for non-resident students.

We hope we will have an opportunity to review the impact of the tuition recommendation with the Budget Committee as we review both our request and the Executive Budget recommendations. We are concerned that an increase of this magnitude could create a genuine hardship for many parents and students.

The capital construction recommendations submitted to the Legislature also contain both good news and bad news.

We are especially pleased that the Executive Budget has recognized the pressing needs for a law building, a veterinary science research building, and relief for the life sciences on the Lincoln campus. While we clearly want to examine in detail the proposal recommended for solving the needs in the life sciences, we are pleased that the need was again recognized. In the same spirit, the veterinary science research facility so desperately needed to reinforce our important livestock industry may require a larger outlay than has been recommended.

We were surprised and disappointed that the recommendations did not provide funding for the Omaha campus for land acquisition or for a library. It is our judgment that it is extremely important to continue the carefully defined program of land acquisition for UNO's future development, and we hope very much that we can work out some suitable arrangement between the governor's office and the Legislature to permit this to continue.

A physical facility for the library at UNO is a matter of urgent priority. The enrollment will continue to expand at UNO, and there is every reason to believe that this will continue to be primarily a commuter institution. This places a special emphasis on the library facilities, and this demand will increase in the years immediately ahead.

Even if funds are appropriated in this session to begin the planning and construction of a library facility, we are three years away from actual occupancy. It is our belief that the situation which is bad now will be crucial before three years have elapsed. We hope there can be some relief in this area as we have further discussions on the budget.

Engineering studies now available to us indicate that the most economical way to accommodate the heating and cooling needs of UNO would be through a central utility plant. While it is possible to continue to meet the needs through individual utility units, we believe this represents a dollar waste which we would not like to defend. We are exploring ways to build a central utility plant without a direct state appropriation, and we hope we can develop a recommendation in cooperation with the Governor's office and legislative officials which will solve this problem.

In summary, I would like to recognize what I believe to be a positive, constructive attitude in the Governor's budget recommendations. Even though the recommendations fall short of the genuine needs of the University in certain areas, we believe the recommendation carries an encouraging tone.

We are not unmindful of the fact that we have continuing responsibilities within the University to make internal adjustments, to continue to study the effectiveness of our own operations, and to reallocate our resources to meet the pressing needs as they are identified and re-identified. This we are doing.

With the assistance and cooperation of the faculty, the students, the administration, the Board of Regents, the Governor, and the Legislature, we believe we can indeed move this University in the course of the next year and the next five years to the objectives described in the five-year plan.

Weary UNO Matmen Lose Three Matches

The UNO wrestlers came out on the short end of a long hard weekend of mat action as they dropped three out of four dual matches.

The Mavericks were beaten by Eastern Illinois and St. Cloud State, and won over Kearney State in a triple-dual meet Saturday night. Friday night, UNO dropped a dual match to Arizona State 25-17.

Wrestling fanatics who could watch the sport all night had the chance in the triple-dual Saturday as the meet lasted from 6:30 until midnight.

The night got off to a good start for the Mavericks as Bob Stitt pinned his opponent from Eastern Illinois in 48 seconds.

Phil Gonzales, wrestling down one weight from his usual 134 lbs., as Coach Mike Palmisano continued to juggle his lineup due to the large number of Maverick injuries, won his first of three matches 14-4.

Eastern Illinois came back strong and had a 17-15 lead going into the 190-lb. match. Fred Sacco came through with his first win of the year for UNO with a 6-5 decision. But the Panther heavyweight Gene Pouliot defeated Dale Rubesh, 7-1, and Eastern Illinois took a 20-18 victory.

The Mavericks easily handled Kearney State 30-18 in their second meet of the night with pins from Gonzales, 126 lbs., in 51 seconds; Curt Bundy, 142 lbs., in 1:41; and Sacco, 190 lbs., in 3:20.

Well after 10 p.m. the youthful Mavericks, tired and emotionally drained, met their third opponent of the night, St. Cloud State.

Gonzales capped an already outstanding night with a 13-4 decision, and Ken Boettcher won at 142 lbs., 13-0.

In one of the individual bright spots of the night, Charlie Mancuso pinned St. Cloud's Al White in 1:50 at 150 lbs.

Don Cahill won 12-9 at 177 lbs. to give UNO a temporary 1-point lead, but St. Cloud won the last two contests to take a 23-18 victory.

Eastern Illinois was the top team for the night also winning over St. Cloud, 29-7, and Kearney State 41-5. St. Cloud

UNO Inconsistent In Weekend Split

Hot as fire one night, cold as ice the next.

That, in short, sums up UNO's weekend performance on a Kansas road trip.

Friday night, the Mavericks were able to scorch the nets, hitting on 34 of 58 shots, to down Emporia State 95-91 in Emporia.

Saturday night saw icicles form on the hoop as the Mavs shot only an icy 33 per cent from the floor en route to a 72-61 loss to Pittsburg.

The Mavericks' split left UNO still in second place in the Great Plains Athletic Conference with a 5-4 record. Overall, they stand 12-8 on the year.

The Mavericks now are nine and three in competition at the UNO field house but have developed a "Creighton complex" and have only won three of eight on the road.

They must play Wayne State, in a crucial Nebraska College Conference game, Saturday night in Wayne.

Saturday's night contest with Pittsburg saw the Mavericks come within four, 65-61, with 1:19 left. Turnovers on the next three possessions cost UNO the

Wayne Sets Mark in Win

By Dave Coulton

"I always try to reach for goals I thought were impossible."

Mark Wayne achieved one of his impossible goals when he broke the school and the field house records in the 1,000 yard run last Thursday night.

The record breaking performance came during UNO's first home indoor meet of the season. The Maverick trackmen defeated Nebraska Wesleyan 80-42.

Dave Micheels, who set the old field house record last year, finished second and Tom Mahr was third to give UNO a sweep in the event.

"Jim McMahon (UNO assistant coach) was keeping time so I knew I was on the pace, (of the record)" Mark said after the race. "I was inspired by my time halfway through, and that kept me going."

"I'm not fast, I just have more endurance," he said. Mark said he was able to build up his endurance by running cross country. "It helped my endurance in the half-mile especially, and in the 1,000."

Coach Lloyd Cardwell agreed. "Mark's improved tremendously this year. He improved a lot in cross country this year. It's helped his track."

Mark said of his record breaking feat, "I knew I was in shape to do it. A lot of times we (the team) have some of our best times in practice, so when we go to a meet we know we can do it. I just have to get it in my head and go out and get it."

"I'm All-American (in the two-mile relay) and I broke the record, and now that I've got them I'm really happy," he said.

But Wayne, who has done things he once thought impossible to achieve, is not ready to stop there.

Looking towards the future Mark said, "I'm shooting to break my record in the 1,000 here and I'd like to get the one down at Doane (this Saturday). We'll be going after the field house record in the two-mile relay in a couple of weeks."

Cardwell was also pleased with other performances, including the crowd. "We had a nice crowd considering the weather," he said of the fans who braved Thursday's bad roads to attend.

"Our sprinters are improving all along," Cardwell said. "Sam Evans and Dan Cutler have great competition among themselves."

Evans and Cutler placed one and two respectively in the 60-yd. dash.

"We have the same kind of competition among our hurdlers," Cardwell pointed out. Frank Borowiak and Tim Newberry finished first and second respectively in both the 60-yd. high hurdles and the 60-yd. lows.

Cardwell said that the mile relay team is getting back together, and that they will be improving from now on. The mile-relay team had been hurt by injuries.

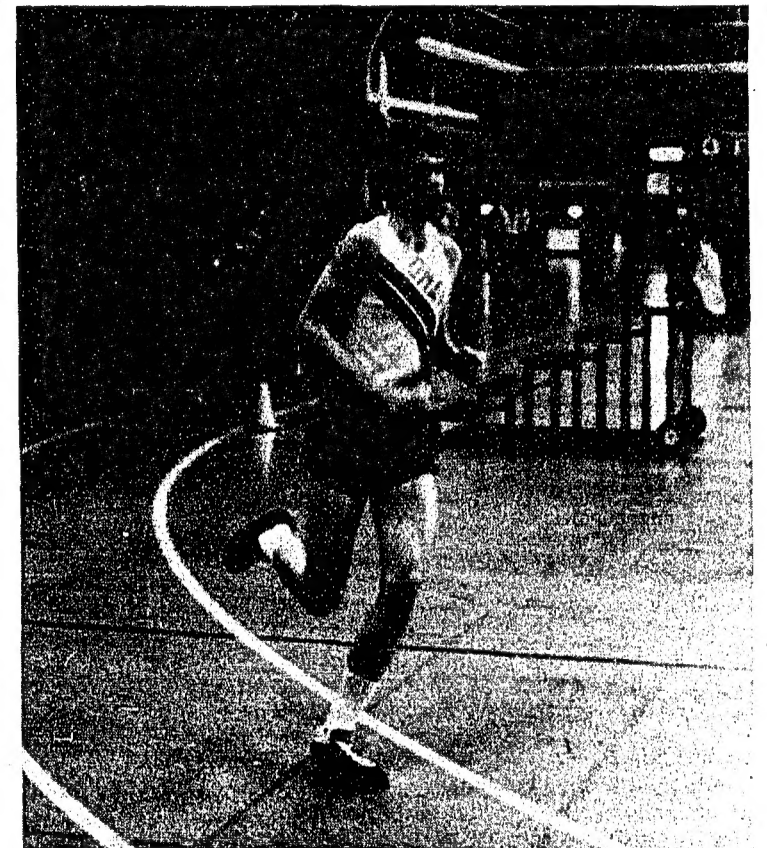

Cardwell was also pleased with how well UNO did in the field events, especially the shot put.

"This event is one we haven't done very well in the last couple of years," he said. Bob Buchta and Jerry Goerig finished second and third in the shot for the Mavericks.

Results:

Field Events
Shot Put — 1. Dave Folkerts (NW) 47-1½. 2. Bob Buchta (UNO) 45-2¼. 3. Jerry Goerig (UNO) 43-6¼.

Mavericks Take to Ice been helping us on a volunteer basis," Rock stated. "When he's not there, I usually run practices."

Practice is held at the Benson Ice Rink but they are few and far between because of the money involved.

"We have to rent either Benson or Ak-Sar-Ben. Sessions go at $40 an hour so with about one game a week we only have one practice."

"So far, the guys on the teams have been picking up the finances themselves, out of their own pockets. This amounts to around $3 to $4 a week."

While the kids in Omaha junior hockey program sometime arise early to play, Rock said his Maverick team must stay awake to practice. The reason for this is because they get their ice time at 10 p.m., after the public is done using the rink.

Late Start

As mentioned before, Creighton has been the only opponent.

"We got kind of a late start," Rock explained, "and now must try to pick up games whenever possible."

In the future, he hopes the club can compete against UNL, Graceland College, perhaps Colorado State and anyone else who would be willing to play the team.

Rock said a constitution, modeled after the bylaws of similar clubs at Iowa State and UNL, has been submitted to the Student Senate.

The main problem as of this moment is that the club is not officially recognized by the university, so they do not get any funds or aid from the school. Only the use of the university's name.

"I've talked to Don Leady (Ak-Sar-Ben administrative head) about the chance of getting ice time next year. I would like to be able to practice once or twice a week if possible."

Rock also is going to see UNO Athletic Director Clyde Biggers and explain the club to him.

Wear Own Uniforms

Rock said that when the Mavericks are able to use the facilities at Ak-Sar-Ben it is much better than using the smaller rink at Benson.

Rock said that at the present moment the players wear their own uniforms. "We're looking into the prices of what uniforms would cost."

"We are also trying to set up some sort of budget to try and figure out how much it would cost to run a team for the year."

Uniform costs and ice rental expenses would be the two costliest items in the budget.

Rock said what this year's team is basically trying to do is to set the groundwork to build upon in the coming years.

The next regularly scheduled game for the team will be on the Ak Ice against UNL on Feb. 16. A special bonus has been thrown in by club members.

Come early and you get to see the Omaha Knights and San Diego play. Then, after they are finished, the main attraction will take the ice.

Mark Feb. 28

For all you calendar makers, Feb. 28 is also a date to circle. That's when Kearney State invades the UNO fieldhouse for an important Nebraska College Conference basketball game.

It appears that again this year the final game of the season will decide whether or not the Mavericks will qualify for post-season play.

Last year, the Mavericks traveled to Kearney, lost and ended their season. This year, Kearney comes here hopefully to lose and end their season.

Some people call it the fastest, roughest game around.

It is to Canada what baseball is to the U.S.

It, is ice hockey. In recent years hockey has caught on in the Midwest not only with increased interest as a spectator sport but also as a participant sport.

Little league hockey has a basically strong program in Omaha. Due to the shortage of ice space, kids sometimes have to play at 5 and 6 in the morning. That's dedication.

UNO has gotten itself into the ice hockey act. No, not UNO but a group of approximately 20 UNO students who have formed the UNO Ice Hockey Club.

The team started practice just before the semester break and since then have won a contest with Creighton, tied one with Creighton and lost one to Creighton.

Pittsburg, averaging an earlier 83-79 loss to UNO, hit 57 per cent from the floor on the familiar baskets. The Mavericks had four players finish in double figures with Cal Forrest topping the club with 17 points. Kevin Nelson, standout freshmen from Scribner, Neb., followed with 15 points and Dennis Fisher and Steve Fleming each hit 10. The Mavericks, down by only 33-37 at intermission, made up a 13 point second half deficit to pull within four before the scoring drought set in.

Any UNO woman interested in playing intercollegiate softball is asked to attend an organizational meeting Feb. 15 at 4 p.m. The meeting will be held in the west quonset hut and is open to any woman who has a 2.0 grade average and is enrolled with at least 12 hours. Application forms should be picked up from Miss Connie Claussen's office (west quonset) and returned to her by Feb. 7.

time this year as the junior from Omaha Central potted 32 points. The contest was a foul filled event, with 55 infractions called on both teams. The Mavericks were able to convert 30 Emporia fouls into 28 points in a 28-35 performance from the charity stripe. Nelson and Fisher aided the Forrest-led attack with 24 and 18 points respectively. Forrest hit on 10 of 17 field goal tries plus added 12 free throws. Forrest's performance, though, couldn't wrest scoring honors away from the Hornets' 6-9 post man Ed Burton who hit 33 points. The Mavericks led 50-39 at the half and held off a Burton led rally to notch their victory.

Nelson, Fisher See Point Averages Climb

Dennis Fisher and Kevin Nelson continue to watch their scoring averages climb in this year's 12-8 season. Fisher, a starter at the beginning of the year, played poorly the first few games and lost his first team spot. Since the UNO Holiday Tourney, though, Dennis has been the top point producer from the guard position. In fact, his 267 points outtotals the combined efforts of guards Dave Ksiazek, Tim Linder, and Steve Fleming who have hit 252 points. Nelson, the scrappy frosh from Scribner, Neb., started the year with the UNO reserves. Fine early performances elevated him to the varsity. After breaking him in slowly in the first half of the year, UNO coach Bob Hanson was ready to start his prize recruit when Randy Worth fell ill on the Colorado trip. Since then Nelson has assumed the starting forward spot opposite probable all-conference selection Cal Forrest and has been scoring at a 13.1 clip. Forrest continues to lead the Mavericks as he saw his point total surpass the 400 mark this weekend. He now has 413 points for a 20 game average of 20.6.

UNO, with Paul Martinez and Terry Zegers added to the already long injury list, could only gain three victories out of the ten matches and were beaten 25-17. Two were pins, Cahill at 177 lbs. in 4:53, and Gonzales at 126 lbs. in 3:08. Ken Boettcher defeated the Sun Devil's Randy Williams 3-2 at 142 lbs. and Ole Larson wrestled to a 5-5 draw in 167 lbs. action.
